High Commissioner For France Stoned; U.S. Consul Safe

TUNIS, March 9-UP-An anti-American mob of French settlers stormed the U.S. consulate here Friday, ransacking offices and destroying files, and then wrecked the headquarters of the U.S. information agency.

The rioting settlers, protesting alleged American interference in French-Tunisian affairs, trapped the U.S. consul and his family in the building but did not harm them. They also stoned the French commissioner to Tunisia Roger Seydoux.

Officials reported that one Frenchman was fatally wounded by gunfire when the rioters broke into a nationalist newspaper office. Two newspaper employes were beaten severely.

French army units moved in Friday night and took up positions at key points in the city. The troops and police used tear gas to disperse the rioters.

Street, I am convinced our walls have heard more earnest prayers than many an arched cathedral. . .

It is Christmas Eve, and I wish I were home trimming the tree for my children. Somehow I have never gotten used to the fact that Christmas Eve is always the busiest night in our year, more accidents, more drunks, more fights, busier even than New Year's.

Then there is a sullen guy standing in the corner twisting a battered hat. We've had him here before, victim of a barroom stabbing. But tonight Joe isn't the vic-

His Car Hit a Girl

Fifteen minutes ago he brought in an 8-year-old girl. The poor scrawny little thing looked about four. He'd knocked her down with his car. For such a rough character Joe had handled her pretty gently, all wrapped up in his coat. Now he's waiting . . . and sweat-

Finally he can't stand himself any longer. He walks over to a newspaper photographer. "Mister. do you pray?"

"I been known to," drawls the photographer.

"Will you pray for that kid?" "You hit her," says the photographer deliberately. "You pray." It sounds cold, but he has a little girl of his own. "It wouldn't do any good. He wouldn't listen to me." Joe mut-

"And ... I don't know "Try," says the photographer.

He Didn't Forget An hour later, Joe still sits, his head in his hands, talking under his breath. The child's mother arrives. Only then does Joe learn that the little girl will be all right.

"He heard me," says Joe in awe. "Yeah." says the photographer. "He gave you a present on His birthday. Don't you forget it."

Joe didn't forget. We see him now and then when he begins to wonder if he thanked the doctor enough for what he did for the child that night. Joe's washed up as a tough customer. Has been ever since the night a little girl taught him to pray.

Hallowe'en passes and Thanksgiving. Another Christmas comes. My children are older now. They can trim their own trees. Giant Rail Merger Proposed

The favorite dream of Canadian-born James G. Hill, railroad titan and empire builder, was to establish under his own control a unified rail system serving the vast Pacific Northwest. Legal obstacles invoked by other great financiers with whom Hill battled furiously prevented him from realizing this dream.

Male Plumage

Can it be that European fashion marts---particularly Paris ware losing hold on American buyers? There are signs that the stranglehold Paris has so long held over women's clothing styles is slipping. There have been minor uprisings in this country for many years against some of the more radical Parisian designs, but it wasn't until the "flat look" came into being that the U.S. as a whole rebelled.

Of perhaps more interesting note is the fact that men, who do the most grumbling about women's styles, are in control of, and responsible for, fashion changes in feminine attire. It is a well known fact that ladies garments are designed to attract the male eye, but it was the men who first adorned themselves with lacy frills, gaily plumed hats and high heeled shoes.

A poet of the 18th century described the male of that day as follows:

"A coxcomb, a fop, a dainty milk sop

Who shrugs and takes snuff, and carries a muff. Looks just like a doll from a milliner's shop.

Who shrugs and stakes snuff, and carries a muff, A minnikin, finicking French powder puff."

Later, the Puritans begame famous for discarding frills in favor of a simple utilitarian costume, but even they couldn't resist a touch of innovation and wore coarse underwear embroidered with Biblical quotations,

Throughout history there are evidences of men's styling having changed more radically than the ladies' ever have.

Male Plumage

Can it be that European fashion marts—particularly Paris—are losing hold on American buyers? There are signs that the stranglehold Paris has so long held over women's clothing styles is slipping. There have been minor uprisings in this country for many years against some of the more radical Parisian designs, but it wasn't until the "flat look" came into being that the U.S. as a whole rebelled.

Of perhaps more interesting note is the fact that men. who do the most grumbling about women's styles, are in control of, and responsible for, fashion changes in feminine attire. It is a well known fact that ladies garments are designed to attract the male eye, but it was the men who first adorned themselves with lacy frills, gaily plumed hats and

A poet of the 18th century described the male of that

No New Leads In Prowler Case East Of Monroe

No new leads had developed yesterday afternoon in the case of the prowler who attempted to break in on a local woman and her three children at their home on Oaklawn street Thursday night according to the Ouachita parish sheriff authorities.

The woman was identified as Mrs. E. M. McNeal, of Oaklawn street, just outside Monroe city limits in Spanish City.

Mrs. McNeal told officers that the prowler threatened to kill her Thursday night and tore screens away from windows in an attempt to get into the house.

She said the prowler walked upon her porch, removed the porch light bulb and demanded that he be let in. Mrs. McNeal ran to the phone and called authorities.

After being denied entrance Mrs.

its nine days of public hearings ended this week.

The three-week delay will afford omething of a cooling-off period for efforts to launch a second and proader investigation of lobbying, including any and all efforts to inluence legislation.

The broader inquiry, slated to be nade by an eight-man committee livided evenly between Republieans and Democrats, has been bogged down in a partisan wrangle over procedure.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said Thursday it would be improper for the second committee to begin work before the George group completes its investigation and report.

He told newsmen Friday Senate eaders are "pursuing" a solution o the procedural dispute that has stalled the eight-man "blue-ribbon' 'committee. He said he knew of no plans for an early meeting of the group but added there is ample time to clear up the trouble and get the inquiry under way.

2 SEE WITH EYES OF DEAD PRIEST-These two youngsters in a hospital at Milan, Italy, can see again through the eyes of a dead priest, Father Carlo Gnocchi, who died February 28. He had asked that his eyes be used in an effort to restore the sight of blind children. After his death, one of his corneas was transplanted to 12-year-old Angelo Colagrande (top), blinded five years ago by quicklime. Angelo's bandages were removed March 7 with his sight restored. The other cornea of the priest went to 18-year-old Amabile Battistella (bottom) who lost her sight in childhood as result of an illness. She had some vision when her bandages were removed March 8. With the House having passed a hill last session for rigid supports and the Senate vesterday voting for flexible supports, it becomes necessary for a joint committee to try and reach agreement. Reports emanating from Washington now indicate House members are likely to remain strongly in tryor of rigid supports and a stalemate could well be reached. Perhaps there would be so many delays as to prevent passage of a tinal farm bill in time for this sea-

Alabama Solons Seek Cotton Quota Freeze

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 9 The Alabama Legislature passed without a dissenting vote toa resolution urging Congress to freeze cotton acreage allotments at either the 1954 or 1955 levels It swept through the House of Representances 93-0 and the Senate enably gave its approval 30-0 a short time afterward

The resolution noted that the cotten program as now being administered "is creating undue and exseme hard hip upon individual cotton farmers in this state."

Reductions in many cases come up to and exceed 50 per cent of normal cotton acreage on individual farms in Alabama, the resolu-

DON'T TAKE SERVICE FOR GRANTED!

One of your most important considerations in buying a power mower or an outboard motor is the dealer's ability to service after the purchase. The usefulness you enjoy from your power mower or outboard motor will, in the long run, prove no better than the service available to you. No dealer in the entire State of Louisiana even comes close to having the service and parts department which we maintain. Before you buy, investigate service facilities. With the House having passed a bill last session for rigid supports and the Senate yesterday voting for flexible supports, it becomes necessary for a joint committee o try and reach agreement. Reports emanating from Washingon now indicate House members are likely to remain strongly in favor of rigid supports and a stale nate could well be reached. Perhaps there would be so many delays as to prevent passage of a final farm bill in time for this sea-

The market experienced little effect from yesterdays Senate approval of flexible supports, and volime of trading was light throughout the session. New crop months vere the stronger as professional and commission house buying led he advance. Alabama Solons Seek Cotton Quota Freeze

MONTGOMERY, Ala., March 9 - The Alabama Legislature assed without a dissenting vote to a resolution urging Congress o freeze cotton acreage allotments t either the 1954 or 1955 levels It swept through the House o Representatives 93-0 and the Senate swiftly gave its approval 30-0 a short time afterward.

The resolution noted that the cotton program as now being adminstered "is creating undue and exreme hardship upon individual coton farmers in this state.

DON'T TAKE SERVICE FOR GRANTED!

One of your most important considerations in buying a power mower or an outboard motor is the dealer's ability to service after the purchase. The usefulness you enjoy from your power mower or outboard motor will, in the long run, prove no better than the service available to you. No dealer in the entire State of Louisiana even comes close to having the service and parts department which we maintain. Before you buy, investigate service facilities. We think that investigation will lead you to Howard Griffin for your purchase.

Widows With Pensions Must Screen Suitors Carefully

By DOROTHY DIX

DEAR MISS DIX: I've often read that it's good for elderly people to marry for companionship. Well, I did just that, thinking I would have company and kindness. I was a veteran's widow, getting a pension. Then I met this man, lonely and anxious to marry. So I married him, and presto, I never saw anyone change so quickly in my life. From a thoughtful, considerate person, he became a selfish, grasping, demanding man. His family ignores me.

I am a good cook, dress well, and keep a nice house. He enjoys all the advantages I give him, but in return I get nothing. Of course, I lost my pension when I remarried so all I have now is my I guess I was just taken for a home and house keeper. I have sisters I could visit, but I'm afraid he'll sell everything in the house while I'm gone. ANSWER: You have one consolation - for what it's worth. Lots of other women have made the same mistake. Loneliness is such a desperate feeling that one is willing to exchange anything for company, for someone who "belongs," only to find that the price was too high. Youth may consider the world well lost for love, but their seniors would prefer to salvage a little security out of the deal. Older women with pensions or property should consider marriage very, very carefully. Not all gay deceivers are young men. Women with cozy homes, assured incomes and, by no means least, experience in cooking, have a strong appeal for men who lack the ambition to support themselves. Unfortunately, they are very easy

There isn't anything you can do to salvage your pension, Mrs. K., but there's no reason why you should continue to be taken over by your husband. Tell him begone; you have nothing to lose.

HE WON'T WRITE

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend is a freshman in college and I'm a high-school senior. He doesn't like to write so I only receive letters once every two or three weeks. How can I get him to write more often?

ANSWER: Be provocative. Begin a story about someone he knows, cut it short in the middle and say, "I think I'll keep you guessing. The rest must wait for my next letter - which will be sent after yours, of course. A quick reply will bring a solution to the mystery. Betcha can't wait!"

DEAR MISS DIX: My sister's birthday is next month and as she was married recently I don't know whether to get her a gift for the home or a personal one.

ANSWER: Perhaps at this particular time she would prefer something for the house. Her personal needs are probably taken care of by her trousseau, and a new home does need a vast number of

GET RID OF BEETLES

Twelve spotted cucumber beetles may be expected in winter and early spring vegetable fields damaging various crops. Vegetable fields should be watched for injury from these beetles and insecticides applied when they occur in abundance. Five per cent DDT dust is an excellent control but cannot be applied on green-leaf vegetables close to harvest. On such crops as turnips, mustard and broccoli, use per cent rotenone dust immedi ately prior to harvest.

Both Republicans and Democrats generally agreed that the cost-price squeeze on farmers will be a major election issue this year. But they differed on the effect of the Senate vote on this year's battle for congress and the White House. Democrats contended the administration's rejection of their rigid support plan would cost the GOP votes on the farm belt. Republicans argued that rigid supports piled up current crop surpluses which led to current farm troubles.

The amount of the corn acreage provided by the Senate was a compromise reached after eight hours of debate

Sen, Bourke B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) had introduced an amendment calling for an increase to 56 million acres. But he reluctantly accepted the compromise after chances appeared slim for its approval

Democrats, still smarting from defeat of their high supports, charged that an increase in corn state's program to equalize Negro acreage would be unfair to other and white schools. basic farm crops.
